

TREASURE STATE ORFF CHAPTER

A Spring Workshop: featuring

CHRIS ROBERTS

Participants will:

- learn a body of singing game repertoire for use in the upper elementary grades
- discuss rationales for including singing games in the music curriculum
- determine effective processes for teaching singing games
- explore potential pitfalls of singing games and how to avoid them

Christopher Roberts has taught K-5 elementary music in Seattle for 13 years, and is a doctoral student in music education at the University of Washington. An active teacher educator, Roberts has presented sessions for music teachers in 11 states, and has published articles in the Orff Echo and the Kodaly Envoy. His areas of interest include singing skills, beat competency, and elementary student attitude towards music. In 2009, he was awarded the Outstanding Research Award - Professional by the Organization of Kodaly Educators for his article, "Wanna Race? Student Attitude Towards Competitive and Non-Competitive Singing Games in the Elementary Music Classroom." In addition, he has taught in the Kodaly Certification Program at Seattle Pacific University since 2000. Currently, Roberts is the Northwest Regional Representative for the Society of General Music.
